Feature availability specification

Availability rule

A point-in-time value is usable for an example when published_at + lag <= event_time, where published_at is the effective publication instant. Merchant risk publications are the calendar events of the snapshot publication calendar; IP reputation partitions are published at the times in the schedule below. A publication that falls inside a feature-store outage window (incident log) is effectively published at the end of that window (merchant risk: incidents of system feature-store, IP reputation: incidents of system feature-store-ip).

Default lags: merchant_risk 180 minutes, ip_reputation 45 minutes. A row of the lag override file for (source, UTC date, UTC hour of published_at) replaces the lag. A later revision of this specification may replace a default lag from its effective date when the governance charter grants it.

Merchant risk

Snapshots of a cancelled calendar event or with registry status withdrawn are never usable (status superseded only marks that a newer snapshot exists and does not change usability). Rows flagged void are unusable. Among usable rows of the example's canonical merchant pick the greatest as_of, then the later published_at, then the larger snapshot_id. A correction (Corrections sheet) replaces the value from corrected_at + lag onwards; the latest such correction at that time wins.

IP reputation

Observations of a quarantined partition are unusable; a correction of action void removes an observation and rescore replaces its score, whenever the correction was reviewed. Among usable observations of the example's IP pick the latest observed_at, then the larger obs_id. No usable observation means the value is missing.

A merchant risk snapshot without a calendar event is never usable. A snapshot is usable once its effective publication instant plus the lag (at that instant) is at or before event_time.

Corrections

See the merchant risk and IP reputation sections.
